It's morning time, the sun is high,
But Mommy's still asleep, oh my!
I peek inside her room so wide,
Her covers pulled up, hiding her inside.

I shake her gently, "Mommy, wake up!"
But she just snores and stirs her cup.
I jump and shout, "It's time to play!"
But still she sleeps, what can I say?

I race downstairs and search for food,
But all I find is empty plates and mood.

I pout and stomp, "This is not fair!"
I wish my mommy had more care.

But then I see a note on the fridge,
It says, "I'm sorry, I slept like a fridge."
"I worked so hard, I'm tired and sore,
So please be patient, I'll be up in an hour."

I sigh and nod, "Okay, I'll wait."
I turn on the TV and start to relate.
But soon I get bored and start to roam,
Exploring every nook and cranny of my home.

I play with blocks and build a tower,
I draw on paper with crayons that scour.
I make a fort out of pillows and sheets,
And pretend to be a knight on valiant feats.

The hours pass and soon it's noon,
And still my mommy sleeps, it's a strange boon.
I start to worry, is she okay?
I tiptoe closer and peek at her face with dismay.

She's breathing softly, looking so serene,
Her face is peaceful, like a tranquil scene.
I smile and stroke her hair with care,
And whisper, "Mommy, I'm always here."

I sit beside her, watching her sleep,
And feel a love so deep, so steep.

I realize then, it's not so bad,
To have a mommy who's a little bit rad.

So I'll be patient, I'll wait with glee,
Until my mommy wakes up, full of glee.
And when she does, we'll play all day,
And make up for the time she slept away.

The Day My Mommy Slept In is a funny and heartwarming story about the special bond between a mother and child. With its engaging rhymes and adorable illustrations, this book is sure to become a favorite for both kids and parents alike.
